Bedwell Awarded Project of the Year

WEST CHESTER - The Bedwell Company has won the Project Management Institute's (PMI - Delaware Valley Chapter) Project of the Year award for the Chester County New Justice Center project. The New Justice Center facility houses District Courts, Sheriff's Department, Prothonotary, and Register of Wills, among other key County support and service offices. The New Justice Center was selected over other regional projects after PMI's review of applications for competing projects submitted in early April, 2008. The theme for this year's Project of the Year submission was Project Management Process Innovations, and projects considered could involve any industry and be any size.

The PMI Project of the Year Award recognizes the project team for superior performance, exemplary project management execution, innovation in the use of project management technology, or other processes. Project management process innovations utilized on the project relate to foundation systems, scheduling, delivery systems, site management, project control and conservation techniques.

The Bedwell Company was founded in 1988 by Tom and Mark Bedwell. The Bedwell Company performs large, and technically difficult public sector general construction projects in Philadelphia area, such as: hospitals, schools, airports, bridges, and correctional, research and development, processing, water treatment, and Department of Defense facilities. This Project of the Year award adds to the growing list of general construction projects for which The Bedwell Company has been recognized for excellence in construction.

Other projects considered for the Award were: Urban Engineers for the Improved Runway Safety project at Susquehanna Regional Airport (2nd place), PPT Consulting for the Center for Excellence Program (3rd place), Nason Construction for the Villanova University Davis Center for Athletics and Fitness (honorable mention), and Hill International for the Comcast Center in Philadelphia (honorable mention).
